Iconic Mangles corner store to get new lease of life

Bunbury City Council last night gave development approval for the iconic Mangles Street deli to receive a significant upgrade to the premises.

The store which is famous amongst locals for its takeaway food and customer service will soon be home to a drive-thru coffee and food service.

The approval for development was a result of City officers working together with the owners and consultants to reach a result which would allow for the business to grow and prosper.

The deli which has been a part of Bunbury's landscape for more than 30 years is an example of local business owners using vision to diversify themselves in the market.

City of Bunbury Mayor Gary Brennan applauded the family-owned business and looked forward to seeing the final result.

"It's a credit to the owners for their many years of hard work and confidence in our growing City to invest in what will be a state-of-art convenience store," Mr Brennan said.
